

transCRyPTion.pdf is a CODEpoem by Mez Breeze and Daniel Temkin.
Mez wrote the poem, and Daniel got it up and running.

This version is just the crippleware prototype, so don't get your hopes up.

////////////////////////////////////

INSTRUCTIONS:

Purchase and download the authorized CODEpoem transcription.pdf file engine. Place the CODEpoem file to the right (in your chain) of the source file you wish to translate, and connect that source file to the CODEpoem file with a sufficiently adherent bridge (1/8-inch or 1/4-inch analog a/v cables and pureData, MAX/MSP/jitter, Nato.0+55+3d, or Quartz Composer patch cords should all suffice). Make sure there is sufficient output space to the right (in your chain) of the CODEpoem file for the translated output to render. Execute the CODEpoem file and allow it to run in palindromic mode until the desired file translation output is achieved. Repeat as desired. (Note: if the source file you wish to translate is Hebrew or Arabic, reverse the translation order, placing the CODEpoem file to the left [in your chain] of the source file you wish to translate, making sure there is sufficient output space to the left [in your chain] of the CODEpoem file for the translated file output to render.)

This procedure works on all .avi, .ogv, .mp4, .mov, and .dv source file formats. For datamoshed and/or databent .avi source files that remain "unbaked," uniform (aka non-"lumpy" or non-"striated" [cf: Deleuze/Guattari]) algorithmic CODEpoem translation is not guaranteed.
